New York's Hospitals and Doctors Have the Highest Medical Malpractice Costs—and That Makes No Sense

Despite fewer adverse events and scoring high on numerous quality measures, New York's world-class hospitals and doctors spend billions annually on medical malpractice costs—by far the nation's highest. It's stark proof of a deeply flawed system in need of sensible reforms.

Let's do something about this.

Tell your State Senator and Assembly Member: It's time to fix New York's medical malpractice system and its out-of-control costs.
