Managing Consultant
eHealth Systems & Solutions

---

Bio & Background

Mr. Caplan, a strategic planner and healthcare economist with over 20 years experience is the Founder and Managing Consultant of eHealth Systems & Solutions, a nine year old New York based consulting firm specializing in telemedicine, telehealth, and information technology solutions for hospitals, rural clinics, and physician practices. He also serves as a Director of MedVentures Advisory Group, a consulting firm dedicated to assisting physician and healthcare entrepreneurs in developing innovative products and services. Mr. Caplan served as Executive Director of the High Plains Rural Health Network (HPRHN), a three state, federally funded nonprofit telemedicine project linking rural hospitals in Colorado, Kansas, and Nebraska with tertiary medical centers in Colorado. Mr. Caplan has been a consultant on several FCC Rural Pilot Projects, regional health technology plans, physician engagement strategies, and patient outreach efforts.

From 2001-2008, Mr. Caplan served as Associate Track Director and Clinical Instructor for two courses he developed; Intro to Health Information Technology and Telemedicine Applications for the Clinical Sciences program at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center and was an adjunct faculty instructor in the Graduate School of Business. He has been a featured speaker at several regional and national conferences on telemedicine, HIPAA compliance, and information technology applications in healthcare education.

How to use this Telemedicine & Telehealth Resource Guide

This Guide was created to assist MSSNY members in navigating the telemedicine service industry. Its purpose is to provide physicians information about companies that either:

- Recruit physicians to be part of a regional/national provider network offering direct-to-consumer teleconsults (a monthly subscription vs. fee-per-call or a hybrid of both models) that are available as part of an employer health plan or as an independent, standalone service paid by the individual employee
- Sell practice based turnkey solutions (hardware, software, network connectivity, videoconferencing services, peripheral devices and vital sign monitors) used by physicians offering a customized and branded telemedicine program to their own patients.

The Guide is divided into two sections, the first section is a detailed profile of the more mature and active vendors in the marketplace based on a phone survey interview. These companies have established a customer base and a proven track record in deploying technology solutions. These companies range from Fortune 500 to mid-sized firms, many publicly traded others venture backed or a wholly owned subsidiary of a larger firm. This list is broken into three vendor categories:

- Physician Networks
- Turnkey solutions
- Videoconferencing

The second section is a listing of vendors that support specific specialties. In some cases these companies offer the same basic service package or products for multiple specialties, some just focus on one specialty or condition (telepsychiatry, telestroke, teleradiology, teleoncology).

There is overlap between the two sections. Not all the companies listed by specialty are detailed in the front section categories as many of them have not yet established a business model that is sustainable but are offering prototypes and pilot projects for customers interested in early adoption opportunities.

This Resource Guide will enable a physician practice to:

- Start the process of identifying & selecting a vendor or consider developing a program internally
- Review work commitment (set schedules vs. schedule at-will) and compensation (per shift, per call) when joining an established network
- Start the application process for joining a provider network
