Urge Governor Hochul to Veto Senate Bill S74A

The Grieving Families Act will expand recovery rights of a decedent's surviving "close family" in a wrongful death case and significantly increase monetary sums awarded. It has the potential to affect the availability and affordability of medical professional liability insurance in New York State and drive dedicated healthcare professionals away.

What's at Stake: In its current form, the bill will

- prompt even more doctors, nurses and health care professionals to leave New York, exacerbating an already significant employment crisis;
- significantly increase financial strain on hospitals and medical practices, which continue to deal with considerable pandemic-related struggles;
- place untenable financial burden on individual physicians and other providers—who have already endured so much throughout the pandemic; and
- lead to hospital, emergency room, primary care and urgent care closures.

ACT NOW!

The bill can go to Governor Hochul soon, giving her 10 days to sign into law or veto.
